

Dear FCC Representative:I pay for the use of XM instant traffic and weather and find it worth the price because I get clear, concise and timely updates without the delays and problems assoicated with the commericals and other chatter on local radio stations. In fact, I don't see how a broadcast association could have any leverage on your commission since the users of XM are paying the bill. We select a service like XM and pay for a service like XM precisely to avoid the referenced commercials, chatter and usless noise of commerical ratio stations.

I respectfully urge you to reject NAB's petition 04-160 and to support consumers rights to select the radio service providers they want as a free market right of the consumer. The competition can only make the other stations better.

Keith Burnett